The German Legal System — Courts, Laws and Constitution

How the German legal system is structured: separation of powers, jurisdictions and the Constitution explained.

Deutsche Begriffe: Rechtssystem | Grundgesetz | Gewaltenteilung | Gerichtsbarkeit | Bundesverfassungsgericht | Rechtsordnung

Fundamentals of the German Legal System

Germany is a democratic constitutional state — this means that all state power is bound by law. The most important legal foundation is the Constitution (GG), the constitution of the Federal Republic of Germany.

Separation of Powers

The German state system is based on separation of powers:

Power	Task	Bodies
Legislative (law-making)	Enact laws	Bundestag, Bundesrat, state legislatures
Executive (implementation)	Enforce laws	Federal Government, state governments, authorities, police
Judicial (administration of justice)	Interpret and apply laws	Courts (independent!)

The powers check and balance each other — no body has unlimited power. Judges are independent and bound only by law.

The Constitution — Your Fundamental Rights

The Constitution (GG) guarantees fundamental rights for all people in Germany — not just German citizens:

Fundamental Rights for Everyone (Human Rights)

- Art. 1 GG — Human dignity is inviolable
- Art. 2 GG — Right to free development of personality, bodily integrity
- Art. 3 GG — Equality before the law (prohibition of discrimination)
- Art. 4 GG — Freedom of belief and conscience
- Art. 5 GG — Freedom of expression, freedom of the press
- Art. 6 GG — Protection of marriage and family
- Art. 10 GG — Privacy of mail and telecommunications
- Art. 13 GG — Inviolability of the home
- Art. 14 GG — Right to property and inheritance
- Art. 19 GG — Right of access to the courts (anyone can sue)

Fundamental Rights Only for Germans (Civic Rights)

- Art. 8 GG — Freedom of assembly
- Art. 9 GG — Freedom of association
- Art. 11 GG — Freedom of movement (free choice of residence)
- Art. 12 GG — Freedom of occupation

Note: EU citizens have similar rights under EU law. For third-country nationals, civic rights are limited or regulated by ordinary laws.

The Five Jurisdictions

Germany has five independent jurisdictions, each responsible for different areas of law:

1. Ordinary Courts

Responsible for civil and criminal law:

Level	Court	Jurisdiction
1st instance	District Court	Claims up to €5,000, landlord-tenant law, family matters, criminal law (up to 4 years)
1st instance	Regional Court	Claims over €5,000, serious crimes
2nd instance	Court of Appeal	Appeals, cassation
3rd instance	Federal Court of Justice	Cassation (highest instance)

2. Administrative Courts

Responsible for disputes with public authorities (e.g., residence permits, building permits, civil service law):

• Administrative Court → Higher Administrative Court → Federal Administrative Court

3. Labor Courts

Responsible for employment law (dismissal, wages, employment contracts):

• Labor Court → State Labor Court → Federal Labor Court

Special feature: Before the Labor Court, each party pays their own lawyer independently (even if they win) — no cost risk to the opposing party's lawyer!

4. Social Courts

Responsible for social security law (basic income, pensions, health insurance, disability):

• Social Court → State Social Court → Federal Social Court

Special feature: Proceedings before the Social Court are free of charge (no court fees!).

5. Tax Courts

Responsible for tax law:

• Tax Court → Federal Tax Court

Special Status: Federal Constitutional Court

The Federal Constitutional Court (BVerfG) in Karlsruhe is Germany's highest court. It reviews whether laws and government actions comply with the Constitution.

Constitutional complaint: Anyone can appeal to the BVerfG if they believe their fundamental rights have been violated — after exhausting all other legal remedies.

- Application to the competent court
- Income limit: individually calculated (similar to basic income eligibility)

For foreigners: Cost assistance is also available to foreigners — regardless of residence status.

5. Pay attention to deadlines — in German law deadlines are extremely important (filing deadline, deadline to object)
