Freiberufler in Germany — Registration, Taxes and Obligations

What a Freiberufler is, how to register, and what tax advantages you have compared to business operators.

Deutsche Begriffe: Freiberufler | Freie Berufe | Selbstständig | Katalogberuf | Finanzamt | Scheinselbstständigkeit

What is a Freiberufler?

A Freiberufler (also: freelancer) pursues self-employed work based on special qualifications or creative talent. The key difference from a business operator: Freiberufler don't need to register a business and don't pay business tax.

Catalog Professions (§ 18 EStG)

The Income Tax Act lists the free professions:

Medical professions: Physicians, dentists, veterinarians, alternative medicine practitioners, physiotherapists, midwives

Legal, tax and business consulting: Lawyers, notaries, patent attorneys, tax consultants, auditors

Natural sciences and technology: Engineers, architects, pilots, experts

Information provision and culture: Journalists, interpreters/translators, writers, artists, designers

Education: Educators (self-employed), lecturers, teachers (self-employed), scientists

Similar Professions

Professions that are similar to catalog professions can also be recognized as freelance:

- IT consultant — if working conceptually/as advisor (not: pure programmer → often business)
- Coach / Consultant — depending on qualifications and type of work
- Photographer — if working artistically
- Web designer — if working creatively-designerly (not: pure web shop operator)

Attention: The tax office decides whether your activity is freelance or commercial. In case of doubt: ask a tax consultant!

Advantages over Business Operators

Advantage	Freiberufler	Business Operator
Business tax	No	Yes (from €24,500 profit)
Business registration	No	Yes (€15-60)
Chamber of Commerce membership	No	Yes (mandatory fee)
Bookkeeping	Simple accounting (always)	Accounting or double-entry bookkeeping
Trade register	No	For merchants/GmbH
Accounting obligation	No	From €800,000 turnover or €80,000 profit

Registration — Here's How

Step 1 — Questionnaire for Tax Registration

As a Freiberufler, you register only with the tax office — no business office needed:

- 1. Set up an ELSTER account (elster.de)
- 2. Fill out the questionnaire for tax registration online (within 4 weeks of starting activity)
- 3. Information: personal data, type of activity, estimated turnover and profit, bank details, small business exemption (yes/no)

Step 2 — Receive Tax Number

The tax office will send you a tax number within 2-6 weeks. With this, you can issue invoices.

Step 3 — If necessary, request VAT ID

If you work with business clients outside the EU, you need a VAT identification number. Application at the Federal Tax Office (bzst.de) — free of charge.

Taxes for Freiberufler

Income Tax

- On your profit (income minus business expenses)
- Advance payments quarterly (March 10, June 10, September 10, December 10)
- Tax return annually (Schedule S)

VAT

- 19% on your invoices (or 7% for certain services)
- Input tax deduction — you can deduct VAT on your purchases
- Small business exemption possible (under €22,000 turnover/year)

No Business Tax!

This is the biggest advantage of being a Freiberufler — you save thousands of euros per year depending on your profit.

Obligations as a Freiberufler

Bookkeeping

- Income-expense accounting — you list income and expenses (simple bookkeeping)
- No balance sheet needed — regardless of your turnover
- Keep records — 10-year retention requirement

Invoices

Your invoices must contain the following mandatory information:

- Your name and address
- Customer name and address
- Tax number or VAT ID

- Invoice number (consecutive)
- Invoice date
- Service description and date
- Net amount, VAT rate, VAT amount, gross amount
- For small business operators: reference to § 19 UStG (no VAT shown)

Social Insurance

Insurance	Situation
Health insurance	Mandatory (public: approx. 14.6% + surcharge + long-term care; private from approx. €300/month)
Pension insurance	Mandatory for certain Freiberufler (e.g. teachers, midwives, artists via KSK) — otherwise voluntary
Unemployment insurance	Voluntary (application within first 3 months of founding, approx. €90/month)
Trade association	Recommended, not always mandatory

Artists' Social Insurance Fund (KSK)

For artists and publicists (writers, journalists, designers, musicians, actors):

- KSK covers the "employer share" of social insurance
- You pay only approx. 50% of health, long-term care and pension insurance
- Requirement: Professionally active as artist/publicist, minimum income €3,900/year

Sham Self-Employment — Beware!

If as a Freiberufler you work primarily for one client, the tax office or German Pension Insurance may determine sham self-employment. The consequences:

- Backpayment of social insurance contributions (up to 4 years!)
- The client becomes your "employer" — must backpay contributions
- Fines for both parties

Typical Signs of Sham Self-Employment

- You work for only one client (more than 5/6 of turnover)
- You are integrated into business operations (fixed workplace, fixed hours)

- You have no own advertising or website
- The client gives you instructions (when, where, how you work)
- You don't employ own staff

How to Avoid Sham Self-Employment

- Have multiple clients (at least 2-3)
- Have your own website and business cards
- Have your own tools (laptop, software, office)
- No instruction dependency — you determine location, time and method of work
- Issue your own invoices (not: time tracking like an employee)

Tips for Foreign Freiberufler

- 1. Check residence permit — must allow self-employed activity
- 2. Inform tax office early — within 4 weeks of starting activity
- 3. Describe your activity precisely — the tax office decides if it's freelance or commercial
- 4. Check KSK — as artist/publicist you save 50% on social insurance
- 5. Build reserves — set aside 30% of profit for taxes
- 6. Tax consultant — worthwhile especially in first year (costs are deductible)
