Home Ownership in Germany — Is It Worth It?

Germany has one of the lowest homeownership rates in Europe — only about 50% of households own their own property. For many foreigners living permanently in Germany, buying a property can still be a worthwhile investment, especially with rising rents. The state supports the acquisition of home ownership through various programs.

KfW Support — Affordable Loans and Grants

KfW (Kreditanstalt für Wiederaufbau) is Germany's state development bank. It offers various programs for purchasing, building and renovating properties:

KfW-Program 124 — Home Ownership Program

- Interest-subsidized loan up to €100,000
- For the purchase or construction of owner-occupied property
- Interest-free initial years possible (1-3 years)
- Application before purchase through your bank

KfW-Program 261 — Federal Support for Efficient Buildings (BEG)

- For new construction or purchase of an efficient building (high energy standard)
- Loan up to €150,000 per housing unit

- Debt reduction grant up to 25% (depending on efficiency level)
- Particularly attractive for Efficiency Level 40 with sustainability class (NH)

KfW-Program 300 — Home Ownership for Families

- Specifically for families with children and taxable household income up to €90,000 (+ €10,000 per additional child)
- Interest-subsidized loan up to €270,000 (depending on number of children and efficiency standard)
- For new construction or first purchase of new construction (Efficiency Level 40)
- Also applies to foreigners with permanent residence

How Do I Apply for KfW Support?

- 1. Inform yourself on kfw.de about the appropriate program
2. Speak with your bank or a financial advisor
3. The bank submits the application to KfW for you
- 4. Important: The application must be submitted before purchase or before construction begins!

Baukindergeld — Family Subsidy (Successor Program)

The original Baukindergeld (2018–2023) has expired. Since 2024, its successor is the KfW-Program 300 "Home Ownership for Families" (see above). This is specifically aimed at families with children and offers particularly favorable conditions.

Who Is Eligible?

- Families with at least one child under 18
- Taxable household income up to €90,000 (one child) + €10,000 per additional child
- First-time acquisition of home ownership (no existing property)
- The property must be owner-occupied
- No restriction to German citizens — permanent residence is sufficient

Wohnriester — Retirement Savings for Your Home

Wohn-Riester (officially: Eigenheimrente) is a form of Riester pension where accumulated capital can be used for an owner-occupied property.

Advantages

- State grants: €175 basic subsidy + €185–300 per child (depending on birth year)
- Tax deduction up to €2,100 per year
- Capital can be used for purchase, construction or debt reduction

Disadvantages

- The subsidy must be taxed in retirement (home savings account)
- The property must be owner-occupied — renting or selling triggers repayment
- Bureaucratic and complex

Who Gets Wohn-Riester?

- Mandatory members of statutory pension insurance
- Civil servants
- Spouses of eligible persons (indirectly eligible)
- Also foreign employees who are subject to social security contributions in Germany

- Income limit: taxable income up to €17,900 (€35,800 for couples)
- The building savings account must run for 7 years (blocking period)

Tips for Foreign Buyers

Legal Requirements

- EU citizens can buy property in Germany without restrictions
- Third-country nationals also can — there is no restriction on property acquisition
- For some funding programs, you need a permanent residence permit (Niederlassungserlaubnis) or at least 5 years of residence

Financing

- Banks typically require 20-30% equity capital (closing costs + down payment)
- A good SCHUFA credit rating is crucial for loan approval
- Limited residence permits can complicate loan approval — be open with your bank

Don't Forget Purchase-Related Costs

Cost Type	Share
Real Estate Transfer Tax	3.5-6.5% (depending on state)
Notary and Land Registry	approx. 1.5-2%
Real Estate Commission	3.57-7.14% (depending on state and agreement)

Example: For a purchase price of €300,000, closing costs are €30,000-45,000.

Avoid Common Mistakes

- Apply too late: KfW support must be applied for before purchase
- Don't combine programs: Some funding can be combined (e.g., KfW + state support) — ask a financial advisor
- Underestimate equity: Plan for at least 20% of the purchase price as equity
- Forget closing costs: Tax, notary and commission together cost 10-15% of the purchase price
